VICE PRESIDENT AND COUNSEL AT FARMERS INVESTMENT CO. SPEAKS TO HUMAN RESOURCES CLASS

Tucson, AZ — Nan Stockholm Walden, J.D., Vice President and Counsel at Farmers Investment Co. which is the largest pecan growing and processing farm in the world, spoke in the Human Resource Management class about her experiences with HR and management.

She spoke about the main things that are necessary to ensure that an agricultural business successful, one of them being dedicated people. She talked about how they have second and third generation families that she works with and how their work ethic is so important.

Not only has she dealt with staffing in an agricultural setting, but she has served in various other areas including as Chief of Staff for Senator Bill Bradley. She made the connection of how dealing with people as individuals is important no matter what industry you find yourself in.

This is important for all racing and non-racing students.
